

Coffee-House Library Short-title Catalogue

Markman Ellis, Queen Mary, University of London

This short-title catalogue lists in alphabetical order 395 printed items (books, pamphlets, maps, printed music) with provenance endorsements indicating ownership by a coffee-house in the eighteenth century. Endorsements, unless otherwise noted, are in manuscript and ink. Illegible or cropped text is indicated by square brackets. Bibliographical information has been sourced from ESTC where available. Endorsements noted by personal inspection (358 items), or from library or auction catalogue records and personal communication (37), as noted below. An appendix notes twentieth century auction sale catalogues with data pertaining to untraced pamphlets with coffee-house provenance.

For discussion of the libraries and coffee-houses associated with these items, see Markman Ellis, 'Coffee-House Libraries in Mid Eighteenth-Century London', The Library, March 2009. The author would be grateful for notice of any untraced endorsements (email to 'm.ellis[at]qmul.ac.uk').

Unidentified endorsed titles in auction catalogues

Book-auction sale catalogues of the twentieth century provide further evidence of pamphlets and other printed material with coffee-house endorsements, many of which remain untraced. Unless otherwise verified by inspection or library catalogue data, these items have not been included in the data-set for analysis, nor in the short-title catalogue.

Sale catalogues, prepared by auction-house book appraisers, follow the conventions of that trade, and not the bibliographical conventions associated with scholarly publishing. Pamphlets are listed as sold (that is, not in any order), using abbreviated short titles, with further unnamed examples aggregated at the end ('with other pamphlets'), before the lot condition report. In most cases the coffee-house ownership inscription is described generically for the whole parcel, typically taking the form 'most with inscription of ownership of Tom's Coffee House'. The total number of titles indicated here, not otherwise in the data, is approximately 285 (greater specificity is not possible due to the nature of the descriptions). The relevant sales are listed in chronological order, with annotations indicating where material has been identified.

From the library of Tom's Coffee House, Devereux Court, for which they were acquired as pamphlets and afterwards bound up. Practically all have ownership inscription.

Tom's, one of several well-known coffee-houses of the same name, shared the honours of Devereux Court with the equally famous Grecian: both were frequented for many years by scholars, wits, and poets. It was at Tom's that Pope addressed a letter to his counsel, Fortescue, and that Akenside spent the winter evenings; Dr. Birch, the antiquary, was another regular visitor. (p. 91: Third Day)
